In the third iteration of the 5-year cycle, all focus groups will complete a thorough review of their program, including assessment of program student learning outcomes. The groups will include all full-time faculty teaching in the program. At the close of the academic year, the groups will have met for several 1-2 hour work sessions. End products include completion of a digital program review binder, the annual program assessment survey (PAS), an updated five-year assessment plan, and creation of a poster or other documentation in order to share results with the incoming groups for the next academic year. Documentation by focus groups also will be used to provide evidence to accrediting bodies of effective program assessment and program review.
